

Paint in the tranquil fishing village of Porto Loutro in Crete

With Mike Chaplin RE RWS FRSA and Jenny Wheatley RWS NEAC

2nd – 9th October 2012

Porto Loutro is perhaps one of the quietest and gentlest of destinations in Crete, only approachable by boat and offering a wealth of painting material within a very short distance from the hotel. A few tavernas and the boats will invite paintings as will the surrounding landscape, and there are various destinations a short boat ride away that will offer a change of scene.

As ever, we will be working with our painters both as a group and individually, offering guidance and demonstrations as well as helping with media that is familiar to you and any that you wish to bring in order to try a new approach. We will review work regularly and offer new ways forward for your return home and subsequent work.

We have chosen for this tranquil week to take place in early October when the weather will still be fine but a little cooler for ease of painting. The hotel is a friendly family run affair with excellent English spoken.

The price includes flights, transfers, accommodation in single occupancy rooms on a bed and breakfast basis, as well as all evening meals and tuition and is £1590 per person

Come and join us and spend a week immersed in the gently Greek way of life while the English nights are drawing in!
